

"I was so nervous I could not sleep a whole night," writes Miss Susan Elroy, R. F. D., No. 3, West Allenton, Pa. "I came out into a good heavy snow, I have been sleeping right along for over a year, but could talk the same."

"But when I started to take Pilo-Pan Tonic I have really felt fine. I really can't say enough for it or begin to tell how wonderfully it helped me. My nervous trouble is gone as well as my rheumatism. I had a pain all the time in my back, and that is gone, too. My appetite is better, I have better control, sleep better and have no sea sickness," writes Mrs. Susan Elroy.

LOCAL MENTION

—Approximately $20,000 in taxes will remain unpaid, according to figures furnished by City Chamberlain C. H. Burdick.

—In respect for Albert B. Tobey, the storm of the members of the Merchant's association will close from 1:30 to 4:30 this afternoon. Fred H. Carr, president.

—The last of the series of weekly dancing parties was held last evening in St. James' parish house and proved the best patronized and most successful of the series. Dewey's Imperial orchestra furnished excellent music.

—In three ways at least the chicken supper at the First Presbyterian church last evening was very satisfactory. There was a large attendance, there was an excellent supper and the sum of $123 was realized. It would be unreasonable for patrons or society membership to ask more.

—According to Mrs. Ralph Simmons, deputy city clerk, who searched the records carefully yesterday, never since Oneonta became a city, January 1, 1909, has there been a child born in the city on February 29. It is safe to say, however, that there will be born tomorrow in either Oswego or Delaware counties and if you doubt that that baby will be a lucky youngster take a look again at the gifts donated by Oneonta merchants now on display in the show window of the New York State Gas and Electric corporation.

While Mrs. Laureau and Mrs. Cragin have no definite plans, they are considering several business propositions in the city and expect in a short time to again be actively engaged.

Mrs. Preston and Mrs. Lewis are to continue the shop along the same lines as heretofore, adding additional stock and a more complete line of ladies' hats. The name of the shop will be changed to the Palace Shop, but the endeavor of the new owners will be to even improve the shop under a policy similar to the previous one.

Mrs. Preston and Mrs. Lewis will have best wishes of many friends in their undertaking.

DOLLAR DAY TOMORROW

TODAY'S STAR FILLED WITH SPECIAL PRICE ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Oneonta Merchants Uniting as Never Before in Efforts to Make it the Most Notable Trading Event in the City's History — Goods Are Open and Bazaar Are Running — Early Shoppers Will Secure the Best Bargains.

With the state roads in this section now in good shape for the winter season for motoring and with the indications favorable for a continuation of the present mild and pleasant weather the stage is set for one of the biggest and best trading events ever held in the city tomorrow—the annual dollar day, in which practically all the merchants of the city are uniting.

Careful perusal of the advertising columns of this issue will satisfy all that the shops of the city are offering bargains that are bargains. None of the merchants have made special purchases of cheap goods for this event, but all are offering goods from their regular stock at prices that have not been equaled since the pre-war period.

All the week cooperating merchants have been preparing their stocks and arranging to serve the public, the throngs being expected to appear early in the day for it is a certainty that the wise ones will be early in the shops to secure the best of the bargains offered.

While from the nature of their goods some merchants are precluded from any offerings at the price of $1.00, yet the savings the goods they are offering represent will mean actual dollars left in your purse if you do your shopping on Dollar Day. All lines are represented and there is nothing that can be desired that will not be offered at a much reduced price.

Bus lines, railroad service and private vehicles will be available by the out-of-the-city shoppers to Oneonta on Thursday. All of the roads are open and all of the busses are running regularly.

If you do not take advantage of the offerings made for this special trade day you will be the loser, for the merchants are united in the determination to sustain the statement that never before have such genuine values and in desirable goods been offered to the people of this section.

Read the advertisements in this issue and satisfy yourself that this is true. If the patronage is large it will encourage to even greater efforts and greater bargains another time.

Russell of the First Presbyterian church, whose theme will be "Objective of Church Equipment," and the Very Rev. F. B. Blodgett of St. Paul's cathedral, Erie, Pa., who portrays "The Religion of a Thinking Man." GRACE KERNS AND COMPANY.

Distinguished Lyric Soprano Sings at High School Friday Evening.

That Grace Kerns is nationally known as one of America's leading concert sopranos is amply evidenced by the fact that she has been engaged as soloist not once but many times by practically all the leading Oratorio and Choral societies in the country. Critics and public alike have acclaimed her work. Again her position as soprano soloist at the fashionable and wealthy St. Bartholomew's church, New York city would stamp her as exceptional. Incidentally this church pays her the largest salary received by any soprano in the country, and the Oneonta Lecturer and Musical course pays her and her company the largest sum paid for any number in the course. She is assisted by Alma LaPine, cellist, and Edward C. Harris, accompanist. This is the fifth number in the Normal and Public Schools course.

Reservations may be made at Gardiner's cafe, 157 Main street, after 5 o'clock. The concert is Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. Single admissions are 75 cents. This attraction promises to be one of the very best that has appeared here in several seasons. advt 21.

MEMORIALS OF GREAT MEN

Program at W. C. T. U. Meeting Yesterday Afternoon One of Best in Town—Mrs. I. S. Dingley, Prof. A. E. Fittelle and Mrs. W. L. Nelson the Speakers.

The meeting of the W. C. T. U. held yesterday afternoon at the Community house, was largely attended and the program was one of the best in years. Mrs. I. S. Dingley gave a most interesting and comprehensive description of the Washington memorial church at Valley Forge, which she visited last winter.

She said in part: "This memorial was called by Wilfred Powell, an Englishman, the 'Westminster of America.' When completed it will have cost ten millions of dollars and will be one of the greatest memorials in the world. The present rector, Dr. W. H. Burk, had the conception or vision of the structure and has raised most of the money to finance it. Its purpose includes commemoration, instruction and inspiration. There is connected with it a great woodland cathedral, where large audiences congregate to hear the word preached from a natural pulpit. The trees in this woodland were all transplanted from Mt. Vernon, the home of Washington. They are planted in the form of a cross. Here President Harding addressed over 15,000 people at one time. The D. A. R. organizations of many states have contributed memorials here to great men and women who built this republic."

Mrs. Leta Briggs sang as a solo, "America, the Beautiful." Mrs. W. L. Nelson was the next speaker and told of the "Lengthening Shadow," cast by Frances Millard, she said. "Twenty-six years ago, February 17, Frances Millard passed from earth. Her memory to the organization of W. C. T. U., which she founded and loved, was 'Carry On.' She believed in ultimate world peace even as she believed in world prohibition. The United States map, dotted with thousands of local unions numbering over five hundred thousand members, testify to the loyalty of her followers, and this is a more enduring memorial than the beautiful life-size statue in Washington, D. C., Hall of Fame, or bronze tablets to her memory in several states."

Mrs. Briggs told briefly of her visit to Ellis Island last Christmas eve, where the state W. C. T. U. had a part in the exercises and distribution of gifts to the 1,200 immigrants detained there at that time. Part of the fund contributed by unions on Millard memorial day supports the missionary work on Ellis Island.

Prof. A. E. Fittelle gave a most interesting talk on memorials of Lincoln, saying in part: "As the years go by the shadows—or shall I say effulgent light cast by this great man becomes greater and greater. How do we measure greatness? In Micah we read a measure of greatness—'What does the Lord require of thee but to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly before thy God?' Lincoln was supremely a just man, in a day when justice was not an easy thing. He loved mercy, and many are the instances of his merciful dealings with his fellows, and through all the ages his genuine humility will be revealed in the classic Gettysburg Address, written and delivered in such humble words. The speech composed of 268 words, 196 one syllable, 46 two syllable, four 18 syllable, and eight of four syllable. It was 'eloquent simplicity.' He was not an idle dreamer, but a doer and followed a great ideal. It may be that America will go through trials more severe and testing than those of the past but America will endure as long as she holds as ideal Americans men and women like Washington, Lincoln and Willard, who did justly, loved mercy and walked humbly before God."

THE KWANS USED FORD

Wednesday Evening Entertainment by Many Fine Features.

At the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club of Oneonta, held yesterday at the Elks' Home, Mayor W. L. Nelson was welcomed to membership, and George P. Armstrong and D. C. Lake of this city and C. S. Morris of Millard Center, were the guests of the day. Donald H. Grant presided with efficiency and cleverly introduced the various features.

A. P. Mills presented to A. E. Fittelle a pair of baby record books in behalf of the club. The presentation speech was in fitting words and the two-fold father in well-chosen words blushing accepted the gifts.

Leon L. Taggart was introduced as the entertainer of the hour. He rehearsed the story of Tom Shumans and his wife and the latter's former and supposedly drowned first husband, Mr. Ford. The scene was in a three-room flat in the eastern part of London, and the amusing story of their life and the unexpected final departure of Tom was a decided hit.

Lynn H. Brees introduced as a stunt a punch board, the operation of which would not violate and state law. Its operation was a source of much merriment. S. S. Kilkenny officiated as song leader, and W. F. Roehrer was at the piano as usual.

The principal address of the evening will be Hon. Jared VanWagoner of Cobleskill, a leading agriculturist of Schoharie county and well versed in the application of the latest scientific knowledge to the farm. The subject of his address will be "Yardsticks of Civilization. No one who can be present should fail to listen to the address of Mr. VanWagoner."

HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME.

Super-Colossal Photoplay Production Opens at Theatre Today.

Beginning today the great photoplay production, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," will open an indefinite engagement at the Oneonta theatre. This production has been lauded by both press and public in all of the large cities where it has played as one of the greatest motion picture productions of the age. The cast numbering more than three thousand players is headed by such well known players as Lon Chaney, Ernest Torrence, Norman Kerry, Patsy Ruth Miller, Tully Marshall, Lewis Stone and many others equally as prominent. The settings are all on a gigantic scale and are said to be the most gorgeous and costly ever erected for a production of this kind. Manager Bert Lowe promises Oneonta theatre patrons the same technical presentation as was given at the Astor theatre, New York city, at $2.00 prices. A special musical score played by a symphony orchestra, will be one of the special features here. The prices for the Oneonta engagement will without doubt attract many from out of town as well as the local theatre goers, prices being 25 cents for the matinee and 50 cents for evening performances. This same great production is playing several nearby cities this week at $1.55 prices.

Why? Do the majority of the business and professional people of Oneonta at 11 vicinity get their eyes fitted by Ives? They know why! Do you? Franklin J. Ives, optometrist, 177 Main street. advt 21.

Binghamton, Feb. 22. — The aid of State Troopers and police in several cities was enlisted today in a search for Eleanor Aylesworth, 16, High school girl and ward of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Hartman of this city, who has been strangely missing from her home since Tuesday morning. The girl is a daughter of Mrs. Bruce Seal of Cooperstown.

Mr. Hartman, who is secretary of the Binghamton Automobile club, had been absent from the city, leaving their ward in charge of friends. Both are returning tonight to aid in the search. Eleanor is said to have been greatly worried because she was behind in her Latin in school.

Ten State Troopers from the Sidney barracks and a bloodhound from Oneonta were brought here tonight to aid in the search after clues had been found indicating the girl may have been kidnapped.

FUNERAL OF ALBERT JESS

Services for Frankham Chase and Oak Fulton Langley Assisted Tuesday Afternoon.

Funeral services for the late Albert Jess were held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the home at 115 Chestnut street and were largely attended by relatives and friends, including the police commission, the city police force, Captain David Wilber, and Anne E. Wilber auxiliary, those organizations attending as units to show their respect for a man whose activity in their spheres had made him greatly beloved.

Rev. John W. Flynn of the First Methodist church, pastor of the deceased, officiated, preaching a sermon of such consolation to those so suddenly and early bereaved. The commitment service was held at the house and was in charge of the Odd Fellows of which order he had for many years been an active and influential member.

The body was placed in the vault at Glenwood cemetery for interment in the spring, probably at Troy. The bearers were Chief Frank Horton, Sergeant Howard Odell and Patrolman Ralph Simmons, representing the police department, of which the deceased was a commissioner, and Elmer E. Brightman, George Dudley and Charles Stitt, representing the Odd Fellows.

There was a profusion of floral tributes including pieces from Canton David Wilber, P. F. Cooper campment, Centennial lodge, L. O. O. F., Anna E. Wilber auxiliary, the Merchant's association, the Police commission and police department, the Men's Bible class of the First Methodist church and the neighbors.

Among those present at the service from outside of the city were Mr. and Mrs. George R. Marcy of Coxsack; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Stevens of Yonkers, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Judd of New Bedford, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Judd of Scranton, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph O. Williams of New York city, Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES

Further Announcement Regarding Summer Session — Rehearsals for Night of Fun Programing Favorably — Junior Class Officers Elected — Oration.

Regarding the summer session beginning on June 30 this year, an announcement was made in a previous issue of the paper. At that time there was a question as to whether or not teaching experience was necessary to obtain the license to teach rural schools for three years. Students who have attended two summer sessions and have done the work successfully, and who have had experience in teaching two years, will be given a license to teach rural schools for three years upon successfully completing the work of the next summer session. These licenses, which are called provisional training class certificates, may be renewed by additional attendance at the summer sessions. Students will be registered on Saturday, June 23, for the coming session and classes will begin on June 30.

Rehearsals for the plays to be given on the Night of Fun, March 6, have been under way for some time. The plays to be presented have been carefully chosen. "Men Not Wanted," a three-act, "Teeth of the Gift Horse," a comedy, and "Dance of Bath," a farce, one-act play by Catherine D'Arcy Mackay, have been selected. Three clever vaudeville sketches are to be given between the plays. Both directors and members of the cast are working hard and diligently to make an especially fine and unusual presentation.

At a meeting of the Junior class, held yesterday afternoon, Mildred Caine of Oneonta was elected president at the resignation of Vivian Sprague of Rome. Miss Caine was formerly vice president of the class thus making it necessary to elect a new member to fill this office. Esther Beane of Oneonta received the election.

Oration have been given recently by the following: Edna Horstman of Scotia, "John Howard Payne," Ernestine Hiltley of Altamont, "The Teacher in the Community," Mabel Settem of Holland Patent, "The Advantages of Earning One's Way Through School."

MANY SORROWING FRIENDS

Attend Funeral Services for Late E. A. Taber at Davenport.

Davenport, Feb. 22. — The funeral of the late Elbert A. Taber, held today at the Methodist church in Davenport, was well attended by sympathizing friends and neighbors. At the house service the hymn, "Gathering of the Bands" by Alfred Tompkins, was impressively read by Attorney A. B. Crippen of Holport, and prayer was offered by Rev. E. R. D. Briggs. At the church Mr. Briggs, taking for his text: "Mark the perfect man and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace," spoke many comforting words, eulogizing the deceased and admonishing the young that his life was one set before them for fitting example. He also referred fittingly to Mr. Taber's church and civic life. There was a profusion of flowers, telling the general sympathy and regard. Among these were tributes from the M. E. church, the Ladies Aid society, board of education and faculty of the high school, Charlotte Valley Hebrew lodge, I. O. O. F. lodge, Schenectady National bank, State Treasurer Shuler and employees of his office, and many others.

Among relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. John B. Balton of Hamilton, Mrs. Frank Bolens of Binghamton, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Cernoud of Oneonta, and Mrs. Benjamin Hubbard of Jefferson, S. A. Birdall of Delhi, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Turner of Oneonta, J. A. Griffin and George Lovell of Schenectady.

Interment was in the Fergusonville cemetery, the bearers being J. M. Hubbard, H. B. Wickham, S. F. Snyder, W. C. Porter, J. T. Yerdon and F. E. Golden. Owing to an unavoidable accident, caused by snow, Rev. R. B. Boyce of Otego, who was to have taken part in the services, was unable to be present.

S. H. Taylor, Former Oneontian, Dead. Intelligence was received in Oneonta yesterday of the sudden death on Tuesday in Albany of Samuel H. Taylor, formerly of this city. No particulars concerning his demise have reached here, but it is stated that the funeral will be held at 4 p. m. on Friday at his late home, 251 Madison avenue. The body will be brought to Oneonta, reaching this city at 10:30 a. m. on Saturday, and the services in the Glenwood vault at 11 o'clock will be in charge of the Oneonta Synagogue lodge.

Mr. Taylor was in earlier life a resident of Unadilla, and while in Oneonta and since in Albany was engaged in the insurance business. He was about 70 years of age and is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Hattie Griswold of Franklin, and by one daughter.

FOUR YEARS TWIXT BIRTHDAYS.

Readers of Star Remember to Transfer to Tuesday's Issue.

While not a great number of readers have sent in notes relative to birthdays occurring on February 23, a few have already done so, and doubtless others will later be heard from.

Mrs. Howard Wilbur of Wells Bridge notes that her mother, Mrs. Eugene Earl, will be 64 years of age on Friday of this week, and that her daughter, Miss Wilbur, born February 23, 1912, will be twelve years old on that date. That grandmother and granddaughter should have their birthdays on the same day, especially on February 23, is certainly unusual.

Henry C. Lawrence, who resides with his daughter, Mrs. George C. Clute, at 123 Spruce street, was born February 23, 1844, and so has had but 19 birthdays, 1909 not being a leap year. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on November 6, 1922.

J. L. Leal, foreman of the Star-Herald office, is also one of the 23-ers. He will tomorrow celebrate his 5th birthday, and the reader can figure for himself how old he is.

CLUB WOMEN PRESENT PLAY.

Annual Entertainment by Students of the Drama Meritorious.

Last evening at the Women's club the membership in large numbers were afforded an evening of recreation, witnessing a truly finished presentation of "The Knave of Hearts," given as the annual entertainment by the drama committee of the club, it rivaling if not surpassing anything previously attempted by the students of the drama in the club.

The capable cast of characters announced in The Star of yesterday profited much by the skillful instruction of Mrs. Louise Hadden Clark, leader of the Shakespeare class, and all of the characters were admirably portrayed. Mrs. Clark was assisted by Miss Eloise Augustin who had charge of the costumes and stage properties and by Miss Louise Wagner, instructor in public speaking at the high school, who aided in the elocutionary perfection attained.

The ladies in attendance were enthusiastic in praise of the work of the cast and of the meritorious presentation given.

New York, Feb. 22. — Lou Farrer, one of the highest scorers in the inter-collegiate basketball league and considered one of the best guards in college play, has been dropped from the Columbia team, it became known tonight. WOMAN AILING FOR A YEAR

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Happy Results

Newcastle, Pa.—"I was all run-down and everybody thought I was going to die. I had been ailing for a year with nothing in my stomach and I could hardly stand on my feet. When I realized I felt as if something was wrong, I was not able to do my work and had a nervous breakdown. I had a very hard time. I spoke to me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I gave it a fair trial. Some women think one bottle should cure them, but I did not stop at that. I took more and got better, and am able once again to do my own housework. There was a time, when I would complain of not feeling well, that my husband would say, 'Go to the doctor.' But now I will tell me to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's, and it has always helped me. I have had druggists tell me that they had something better, but they don't tell me that now, for I take no other. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound now for five years. Any woman who cares to call or write, I will be glad to tell her how it helped me." —Mrs. MABEL LINT STEPHENS, 615 Newell Ave., Newcastle, Pa. For sale by druggists everywhere.

PANAMA CANAL MAKES BIG GAIN IN TRAFFIC IN YEAR

Nets $12,063,880 in 1923, a Gain of Nearly $3,000,000 as Traffic Increases.

Operations of the Panama Canal and auxiliary agencies during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1923, were record-breaking in volume both as to financial returns to the United States government and aid rendered world shipping, the annual report of Governor Morrow, made public in Washington, shows.

The canal netted a profit of $12,063,880 from all sources, excluding the Panama Railroad Steamship line, as compared with $9,201,813 in the fiscal year 1922, and traffic operations increased on a scale that has brought the water way to a point of "rapidly overhauling the Suez canal."

The net income from tolls and miscellaneous receipts was $10,001,000 in 1923, as compared with $8,406,674 the preceding year. The net profits from auxiliary operations totaled $1,440,642, as against $322,238, while those conducted by the Panama Railroad company, excluding the steamship operations, showed a profit of $222,171 against a loss of $710,301 in 1922.

Governor Morrow's report also shows that the number of commercial transits increased from 2,726 to 3,907, net tonnage from 11,417,430 to 18,008,000, tolls from $11,197,532 to $17,508,280 and cargo tonnage from 10,884,910 to 13,587,575.

"The phenomenal growth of the past year," the report continues, "is a cause of surprise. It is due primarily to the development of oil fields in southern California, which have supplanted Mexico as the principal source of supply for the Eastern seaboard of the United States. At the close of the year (June 30, 1923) oil is furnishing 60 per cent of the eastbound cargo."

"The United States made the greatest gains," the report says, "increasing from 1,005 vessels to 1,994" and carrying "50.5 per cent of the cargo moving through the canal, British vessels 25.2 per cent, Japanese 4.9 and Norwegian 3.6."

The most notable increase was in the United States inter-coastal trade, which increased from 2,562,327 tons to 3,068,553.

THIEF TAKEN BY PASTOR

Preacher Captures Robber With Nickel-Plated Pliers.

Rev. Charles Stephenson, pastor of the Emmanuel, N.Y., Christian church, by use of a nickel-plated pair of pliers which looked a pistol in the darkness, has uncovered clues to a band of freight train robbers.

Stephenson, with his family, was motoring in the country when a truck ran into his car. The preacher speeded up, passed the truck and leveled his pliers, whereupon the driver climbed out, while another man ran, escaping in the darkness.

In the truck were 70 cases, each containing 10,000 cigarettes. Recently while a Southern railway freight train was standing over a trestle robbers unloaded 80 cartons of cigarettes.

Thieves for months have been looking for freight cars in this vicinity.

What's the Answer.

Most advocates of personal liberty insist that a man has right to be foolish if he wants to. Does repression of free will destroy all initiative?

Babies Love Pappas.

The average baby is so fond of its father that it sleeps during the day while he is busy so it can stay awake all night and enjoy his society.

RADIO FOR MAIL FLIERS

Receiver to Be Worn in Hat of Pilot.

Air mail pilots flying the continent in the future will be accessible to instructions from ground stations, Post office department experts at Washington having worked out a one-man sending and receiving radio set which will be operated by the coast-to-coast service.

The set, in which the receiver is under the pilot's helmet and the transmitter on his breast, will make it unnecessary for a radio operator to accompany the airplane. The whole mechanism, including batteries, weighs only 170 pounds.

A test of the set was made recently, when Jack Knight, a mail pilot, held a conversation with Postmaster General New while flying over Washington.

ARE FATHERS OF TWINS

One Senator Has Two Sets and Four Others Have One Each.

Whatever may be the legislative score of the incoming senate, members of that body in Washington hold in their keeping an enviable record. That is to say, four senators are the happy fathers of twins, and one is father of two sets.

The return to the senate of members with old-fashioned families caused some inquisitive person to make a poll of the children. Here is the record of twins, with some families to be heard from:

Senator Ladd, North Dakota, two sets; Senator Frazier, North Dakota, one set; Senator King, Utah, one set; Senator-elect Mayfield, Texas, one set.

Lots of Room There.

By dodging responsibility, it is no trouble to get to the bottom, where there is so little room and such poor pay.

CIVIL WAR AND FAMINE
RUIN "RUSSIAN RIVERS"

Crimea, Beloved Health Resort, Now Desolate—Vineyards and Fruit Gardens Gone.

The Crimea, the beloved health resort of the old days and known as the "Russian Riviera," once filled with beautiful palaces surrounded by flowers, vineyards and magnificent fruit gardens, lies now flowerless and ruined as a result of the civil war and last year's famine.

Many of the owners of these villas, vineyards and fruit gardens belonged to the upper classes and lived in central Russia, coming here for their relaxation. Large numbers fled the country years ago, while others, having thrown in their lot with General Wrangel, became the scapegoats of his acts after his defeat and paid the death penalty during the terror which followed the second occupation of the Crimea by the Bolsheviks.

The Crimea has not escaped the effects of nationalization, confiscation and requisitions, and while nominally the immense vineyards and magnificent gardens have been declared nationalized, as a matter of fact they are nobody's property. Vineyards and gardens stood unguarded for several years, with the result that everything went to the dogs.

The wine stocks dried, and a majority of the best fruit trees died.

Thousands of acres of almond, apricot, peach and pear trees and vineyards are today absolutely worthless, and many a year will have to pass before they can be brought to life again.

The same is true of agriculture and industry. Despite the reconstruction work carried on by the Crimean "independent" soviet government, Crimean agriculture and existing minor industries are in a deplorable condition. The number of cattle has diminished by 75 per cent, the total number of working horses being today only 30,000. The sowing area is only 40 per cent that of 1916. This year's harvest will be very small.

Industries in the Crimea are insignificant and play an unimportant part in the economic life. They consist largely of the curing of tobacco, tanning and preserving. They all languish. There is no market for the local salt, and Crimean wines go begging. The people are impoverished and seem content to live with insufficient food, no comforts or pleasures, and with little hope for the future.

JAVA HAS FIRST
PUPPET THEATER

Antedates History and Was Part of Early Ritual of Ancestor Worship.

New York.—At this time, when a reminiscence of marionettes has taken place among Western people, it may be of interest to tell about the puppet theater which, many centuries ago, was the cradle of this art. Further back than recorded history this form of drama existed in Java. The "wayang," or theater, of the Javanese included all other arts as well; they have almost as painting or sculpture, except the carving and painting of their marionette puppets, for the most part, temple sculpture of Java is of Hindu, and not Javanese, origin, writes Tjara De Klerk in the Christian Science Monitor.

In architecture the only thing peculiar to Java is the "pendopo," an open pillared hall with a sloping roof, which may have one or two walls or none at all. Its purpose is for "wayang" performances.

Javanese literature consists mainly of the books from which the subjects of the wayang plays are taken. Javanese music is the "gamelan," an orchestra of various instruments, which accompanies wayang.

Origin in Shadow Figures.

While the Western theater has a naturalistic origin, having started from real life, which it is meant to depict, the Javanese wayang originated with unreal shadow figures, which were superseded by more humanlike puppets and finally developed into performances with living actors.

The most ancient form of wayang is the "wayang purwa," which in Java can be traced back to the Seventh century, but probably is much older.

The word "wayang" means "shadow," but has come to include all sorts of drama, as developed from the shadow-play. "Purwa" means "oldest" and "kullit" means "hide." Both names are used for the same kind of wayang, namely, the shadow plays with flat puppets, carved in hide, gilded and painted with very minute ornamentation. These puppets have exaggerated profiles; their bodies are out of proportion, with enormously long, thin arms, which reach nearly to the ground.

To the unaccustomed European eye they look like grotesque caricatures meant to be ridiculous. But experts in the figures of clowns and monsters they are not intended to be so.

First a Religious Rite.

In common with the drama of the Hindus, the Greeks and other people, the Javanese theater has been the direct outcome of religious ceremonies. The wayang purwa sprang from the primitive ancestor worship when the shadows of ancestors were invoked, in order to give their descendants an opportunity to receive their advice and all sorts of favors.

Originally the head of the family invoked the shadows in this way. Later this task was handed over to the priests, or the shamans. From these developed the professional "dalang," the man who manipulates the puppets, while he narrates the story of the play and speaks the roles of the performing figures.

The "dalang" sits cross-legged on a mat in front of a white linen curtain, which is stretched between two pillars of the pendopo. Over his head hangs an oil lamp. Between this lamp and the screen, on which the shadows are projected, the "dalang" moves his puppets from below, using sticks of wood or tortoise shell fastened to their hands. Behind him the gamelan plays.

Sources of Plays.

The most ancient legends performed are derived from Malayo-Polynesian myths, interwoven with stories taken from all the Oriental peoples. Later the Hindus came to Java with their religion and Sanskrit literature. From that time the subjects of the plays were taken from the Mahabharata and the Ramayana.

Probably the most beautiful wayang purwa at the present time is the one belonging to Pangeran (Prince) Kusumadiningrat, a brother of the sultan of Surakarta. Through his hospitality and that of his family the writer often had the opportunity of witnessing performances in his home, and also of getting valuable information from him. From the shadow play later developed the "wayang kullit" (also called "wayang baris"), which means "small," "the little people." Here the puppets are carved from soft wood, gilded and painted. They are not flat like the purwa figures, nor round like the still later "wayang golek," but something half way between, like a double-sided relief.

In this form of wayang the spectators looked at the puppets themselves, and the shadows were abandoned. The idea of the figures representing ancestors disappeared, and the plays became secular in character.

Manufacturers Become Judges.

Trenton.—Governor Silver appointed William Clark of Bernardsville, a cheese manufacturer, to the Court of Errors and Appeals, succeeding the late Judge Robert William of Fairmont. Judges of the court are laymen.

Chicago May Get Strong Eggs.

Chicago.—Storage eggs sold here would be stamped with the date they were put in storage, under an ordinance proposed by the city council high cost of living committee.

Reverend Intention.

A woman goes to the opera to be seen and not to see. A man goes to a poker game with just the reverse intention.

Penitence.

Auto Lights Used

to Attract Deer
Atlantic City.—Deer poachers are utilizing automobiles with powerful headlights, according to complaints received by William Lander, game warden, who made his first arrest on this charge. Employment of this new method was reported by a state trooper. It is alleged the poachers drive their automobiles at night into clearings where their headlights attract the deer.

Cathedral in Cologne

Draws British Soldiers

Cologne.—British officers and soldiers of the forces occupying this city never tire of visiting its majestic cathedral.

A life size mouse of solid gold under an inverted crystal bowl set upon a marble table in one of the chapels invariably causes much curiosity and inquiries as to the cause of the little golden rodent's presence are frequent.

It is told that some hundreds of years ago the cathedral was infested with mice which were responsible for much damage to the paintings, sacerdotal costumes and other costly silk ornaments. All efforts to rid the cathedral of the plague had proved failures until some one suggested that the presence of a mouse of gold as a permanent fixture would prove effective in frightening the live ones away. The legend says that the remedy was successful.

"Do you really believe such was the case?" a ranking British officer asked of the old sexton the other day.

"Hardly; otherwise, I am certain we should have enough of the precious metal in Germany to set up a gold statue of a British soldier somewhere in Cologne."

On His Honor.

So long as the world lasts there will always be that scared married man who swears on his honor that he mailed the letter he still has in his pocket.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Disease Hits Limes.

The growing of limes in Dominica, the principal industry of that island, is threatened for the first time in its history with serious curtailment from the withering tip disease.

WORKER DENIES INJURY FOR INDEMNITY PAY

State of Washington Washes His Hands of Affairs as Road's Attorney Refuses Claim.

Olympia, Wash.—"Hi-ho-hum," yawned one John—saw in his blankets in the bunkhouse of the Housley Brothers' railroad construction company's camp near Castle Rock, along about 5:30 o'clock one morning. "No-hum, now to turn another dollar," and another catenous yawn convulsed his features, when "whang!" the lower jaw slipped out of its socket and refused to work thereafter. The glass-jawed blacksmith's helper was put out of business.

It was a case for the surgeon, and there was loss of time getting the dislocated jaw back into service. That blacksmith stood on the property used by the company for its camp and equipment. That's how the case came before the state industrial division in shape of a claim for time lost and medical aid.

It was not represented that yawning was an extra hazardous employment, but that the victim of yawning was engaged in the extra hazardous employment of railroad construction and met accidental injury on the premises of his employer. And there were precedents that came near the line. For instance, there was the case of a disciple of Henry who broke his wrist cranking his car to go home after quitting work. Application of the word "premises" has been a perplexing question.

The matter of the yawn and the claim was discussed with the attorney general's office and the claim finally denied by Kenneth Durham, supervisor of industrial insurance. This was on two grounds, one that the injury occurred outside of working hours and away from the working premises, and second, that the alleged injury was not due to "trauma," or wound caused by violence.

So the victim yawned and suffered in vain. The state washes its hands of the affair.

Wary With Caution.

To deal with a man who is always "high strung" after awhile, makes one very wary with caution.

Happiness and Worry.

In the pursuit of happiness, worry is an unwelcome running mate that insists on going along.

Mothers!

Give the children WRIGLEY'S
after every meal

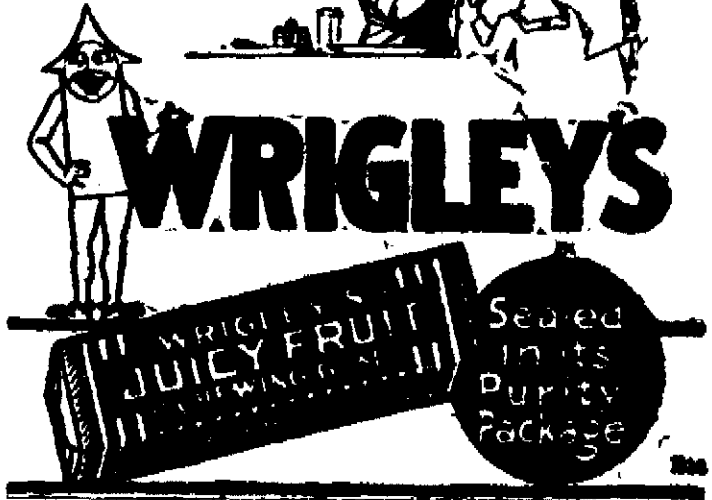

A prominent physician says:

"It is surprising how free from decay the teeth can be kept by using gum after each meal."

You know how hard it is to get the children to clean their teeth. By giving them WRIGLEY'S you not only reward them for cleaning their teeth, but the reward is actually the means of performing this important service!

WRIGLEY'S aids digestion too, and acts as an anti-septic wash for the mouth and throat. Several flavors—all of WRIGLEY quality.

Red Cross Worker in Alaska "Medicine Man" to Natives

FROM Kotchikan in the southeast to Nome in the northwest does the long and hazardous trail of Miss Ebba Djups, American Red Cross field representative in Alaska. It is a stretch of 1,400 miles as the crow flies. By boat and dog sled she travels out across the mountains with their Indians to the Arctic Circle with the Eskimos and midnight sun.

This Red Cross nurse halts at nothing in her task of organizing the work and services of the eleven chapters of the American Red Cross that thrive in "Seward's Ice Box," as the Alaskan Peninsula was cynically designated at the time the United States purchased from Russia this land of limitless resources. The Indians and Eskimos, and all the others pioneering in this vast territory Miss Djups declares, are "the most lovable people." Duty requiring a steamboat trip up the Yukon river from Nome, and the culinary equipment of the vessel threatening to starve her, Miss Djups signed as ship's cook, and reports that "the loveliest part of this new occupation is that I will save almost $100 of steamboat fare for the Red Cross."

Arriving at an Indian village from which calls for assistance for the sick adults and children had been sent out, she found nothing but the school building habitable and the place where the sick were congregated in a deplorable condition. There was only one small room to accommodate the sufferers and the Indian women immediately surrounded the nurse, curious to see the stranger come to act the "medicine man."

The needs of health service among the Indians and Eskimos in remote Alaska are very urgent and the death rate among the infants appalling, but through the Red Cross field service in the territory the worst conditions are being attacked with vigor and with encouraging results.

The spirit of this Red Cross service in this difficult field is best conveyed by Miss Djups, who writes: "Some days I have come back to my room feeling just heartick, and then I have said: 'This is the reason I am here.' When I came to a spot they call a village I almost gave way to dejection; but then, that is the reason why I am here, else the American Red Cross certainly never would have given me the chance to be chief steward on a steamboat with four Eskimos to take my orders."

TALES OF THE OLD FRONTIER

By ELSON SCOTT WATSON

SAM BASS, THE OUTLAW-HERO OF A SONG

Sam Bass, he came from Indiana,
It was his native home,
And at the age of seventeen
Said, he began to roam.
He went way out to Texas
A cowboy for to be—
A under-hearted feller,
You'd seldom ever see—
—The Cowboy Song.

THAT is the first of many stanzas of a song that has been sung in every cow camp and along every winding trail from the Rio Grande to the Canada line. For Sam Bass, whose exploits were thus immortalized by some frontier bard, vies with Jesse James for the honor of being the Robin Hood, hero of the most typical native American ballad.

If there are some who would paint Sam as nothing more than a sordid murderer, he has plenty of apologists who say that he was a not unnatural product of the environment of cowboy life in Texas. As evidence that he was not utterly bad, they would cite the incident of the boy to whom Bass once offered a drink of whiskey.

The boy refused to take it, saying: "Mother doesn't allow me to drink." "That's right, sonny, mind your ma," said the outlaw and, as have so many transgressors, he added sadly, "I wouldn't be where I am today if I had minded mine."

Three days went outside the law by robbing a Union Pacific train, and followed it up with bank holdups, more train robberies and an occasional killing until he became the most notorious outlaw of his time. Once a mob caught him and hanged him from a tree on the bank of a river. They began shooting at the dangling body and a shot cut the rope.

The outlaw's body dropped to the ground and then rolled into the river. A big rattlesnake was seen to crawl away from the place where he had struck and although the lynchers dragged the river, they could not find him. Upon their return to town they were asked if the notorious Sam Bass were really dead. "Well, if he ain't, he ought to be," replied one man. "He was shot, hanged, snake-bit and drowned. That ought to be enough."

But Sam wasn't dead. As he afterwards related it, the force of his fall stunned the snake, and before it could strike, he rolled into the river. The cold plunge revived him, and upon coming to the surface he hid under a pile of driftwood until nightfall gave him a chance to escape. Bass was finally killed in the town of Round Rock, Tex., by a Texas Ranger, after he had attempted to rob the bank there. So great was his fame that the legislature, then in session at Austin, adjourned and, accompanied by the governor, came to Round Rock to see for themselves that the notorious Sam Bass had at last come to the end of his trail.

Kicked by Horse; Boy Dies

Paul S. Newlin, fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Newlin of Marion, Ind., is dead of injuries sustained several weeks ago when kicked in the eye by a horse. The eye became infected and cerebro-spinal fever resulted. Besides the parents, he is survived by three sisters, Helen, Thelma and Geraldine.

Swedes Make Machine

to Dry Native Wheat

Stockholm.—A new contrivance for counteracting the destructive influence of damp weather on the grain production of Sweden is a grain-drying apparatus. It is believed that the use of this machine will not only prove economical to flour mills, but will at the same time have a definite effect on the importation of wheat from America. Swedish mills have in the past found it necessary to blend American wheat with Swedish wheat in equal ratio but by drying native wheat with this apparatus only 30 per cent of American wheat will be required for the blend.

The machine consists principally of four rotating cylinders with tubes for the circulation of the grain, to which warm air is applied.

Trend to Towns Means

Loss of Best Farmers

Dallas, Tex.—"We are becoming a nation of agricultural gypsies and transients; our best farmers are moving to town. If this continues another 20 years we shall have an ignorant, roaming country peasantry like Southern Europe."

Such is the opinion of Dr. Owen Lovejoy, secretary of the national child labor committee, expressed in an address to students of theology at Southern Methodist university. Doctor Lovejoy has spent six months looking into the condition of children in the rural districts of Texas.

By joining efforts European and American specialists have learned that the hair beds do not die when hair falls out and that lack of new growth is merely due to the stagnation of these beds.

After years of study these experts discovered a new ingredient that has new growth more by the penetration of the peculiar property of penetrating to the clogged up follicles—corrects the action of the fat glands—brings about normal circulation of blood in the scalp—and kills harmful germ life.

You profit every day from scientific achievement, radio, automobiles, vaccination, anti-toxin are only a few of the many modern products of scientific research. WELL DUG BY WASHINGTON IN USE AFTER 167 YEARS

Water Still Being Taken From Hole He Drilled in 1756.

Winchester, Va.—Washington's well in the four-month drought that threatened such serious consequences to the Shenandoah valley did not fail in the mission intended for it by the then Col. George Washington, constructor and commander of Fort Loudon, Winchester. In 1756, with the French and Indians moving slowly from the west, Winchester, then an outpost of English civilization, was threatened, and Colonel Washington, afterward general and President of the new republic, was ordered by General Loudon, commander-in-chief of the English troops of America, to construct a fort.

A portion of the embankment thrown up by Washington is still intact, and the line of the fort is traceable. Within the boundaries are situated the Fort Loudon cemetery and a number of private homes. In the yard of a home next to the cemetery is the Washington well. No greater monument to that American hero can be found.

The well is 133 feet deep, drilled through solid rock. It is about 3 1/2 to 4 feet in diameter and every inch dug by hand; not even an explosive was used. So much trouble did the engineer have in obtaining the right timber for the steel that he brought from his old home at Mount Vernon his private blacksmith. There is no record of how long it required to dig the well—not more than three or four months at the most.

The history of Winchester records that for 167 years the old well has continuously functioned and has never been polluted. A short time ago, in placing a concrete cover over the top of the well during the excavation, there was dug out a four-inch solid chunk of charcoal from. As the Principle Farmer at Princeton, N.J., was the only farmer making this class of metal prior to the Revolution, it is reasonable to suppose that Washington obtained his charcoal from this place, owned by his two sons, who, as a young man, he had studied at the manufacture of iron.

FEATHERS FLY IN PRISON

Women inmates of Los Angeles Jail Stage Riot.

A near riot in which mattresses and other inflammable material were set afire, took place recently in the women's ward at the county jail at Los Angeles, Cal. According to Sheriff Traeger, the trouble grew out of a quarrel between two jail matrons, the prisoners taking sides with one who is alleged to have granted them special favors.

Thirty-seven women prisoners were ordered deprived of candles, cakes and other privileges as punishment for the outbreak.

This photograph was taken last December just outside the White House and shows Attorney General Clegg talking with Albert B. Fall, former secretary of interior. Mr. Clegg is on the left and Mr. Fall on the right. Mr. Clegg is looking towards the camera and Mr. Fall is looking slightly away. They appear to be in a formal setting, possibly a street or a public area.

ABOUT FORD CAR SHIPMENTS

Interesting Figures as to Volume of Freight and Cost of Transportation of Ford Cars on Railroads.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 27. — More than half a million freight cars, one-fifth the freight car ownership in the country, are used annually by the Ford Motor company's main plants and various branches, according to figures just given out here.

The average freight charges paid through the Detroit offices direct to railroads, that paid by branches on minor shipments, and freight charges on direct shipments made from manufacturing institutions to branches approximately $75,000,000 annually. Adding to this about $75,000,000 paid by dealers on shipments of autos received by them, brings a conservative figure of $150,000,000 paid every year to freight charges through the instrumentality of the Ford Motor company.

An average of 800 car loads of freight are handled every day in and out of the Highland Park and River Rouge plants alone, and it is estimated that on the Ford Motor company's account 20,000,000 pounds of freight in carload lots are handled every day in the Detroit district.

The larger part of the Ford freight is shipped with the Detroit, Toledo and London, the Ford railroad, as either the initial or participating carrier and special attention is paid to the classing of all freight, so that not only the company but the dealer as well receives the benefit of expert services in freight classification and rate adjustments.

What can be accomplished by co-operation is clearly demonstrated in the prices you will find in every advertisement in this paper today.

If forty or fifty merchants by only one day's co-operation can do this, how much more can 475 stores accomplish that not only co-operate 365 days in the year in selling—but who buy their immense quantities of merchandise together and whose every move is co-operative? That's why

NEWS TO FRENCH DADS

Eighty-eight Fathers of Large Families Honored.

Eighty-eight fathers of families numbering from ten to thirteen children are to receive premiums of 25,000 francs from the French academy, it was decided at the academy annual meeting held in Paris, France, recently. Of this total 50 are farmers or farm workers. Mechanics and carpenters, with four each, come next, and the balance is made up of manual workers, with the exception of two professors, who are the sole representatives of the intellectuals on the list.

The academy also granted prizes of 10,000 francs each to 1,200 fathers of families of from six to nine children, thus distributing more than $3,000,000 francs from the foundation for the purpose of encouraging an increased birth rate, provided for by M. Copland, a wealthy department store owner of Paris, who set aside 25,000,000 francs of his fortune to recompense deserving families of large size.

The academy also awarded large amounts to humble performers of unheralded deeds of abnegation and charity.

Minot Fremont announced that the prize for faithful service in the cause of the French language abroad was awarded to the Laval university at Quebec, Canada.

GIRL GETS FORTUNE IN OIL

Kentucky Woman to Devote Wealth to Hunt for Father's Slayer.

Miss Leona Coyle, aged sixteen, whose home is near Horns, Ky., and is now working in an Indianapolis tire factory, has inherited oil lands in Oklahoma valued at $250,000, according to word received by relatives. Her income, they are told, will reach $80,000 annually.

Miss Coyle is said to have stated that she will devote her fortune to hunting down the murderer of her father, Orlando Coyle, who was slain ten years ago at Ardmore, Okla. It is said the slayer was a half-breed Indian. The belief is held that the oil lands were owned by her father. Three of her uncles have been killed while fighting in the last few years.

GOLD RUSH IN ALASKA
DUE TO MILD WEATHER

Many Claims Are Staked to Be Worked in the Spring by Prospectors.

Phenomenal weather, which took the form of warm chinook winds in the higher regions, has resulted in a stampede of prospectors to adjacent hills near Anchorage, Alaska, where they have staked many claims to be worked for placer gold in the spring.

The warm winds uncovered immense deposits of gravel, which were swept down to the rivers, leaving a new terrain exposed. Prospectors report thawing at great depths which were locked in perpetual ice. They believe that nature thus has left open rich auriferous gravels hitherto sealed.

On the west side of the Turnagain Arm an avalanche 100 feet wide and a mile long rushed down a mountain, uprooting immense trees and cutting deep into the soil. Three ledges rich in quartz were revealed. The creeks of that region had given up placer gold in the past, and the news of the big slide sent every unattached man with an outfit into the mountainous region above the Arm. Claims were staked, and since winter was closing in, the prospectors left to return at the first thawing of spring.

The chinooks prolonged the open season in the hills a month or more. It is predicted that this will result in an unusually early spring, as the usual early freeze-up was lacking and the blankets of snow prevented deep freezing later.

Long-time residents of Alaska believe that climatic conditions are undergoing a general change. They point to the recent deluge that put the southern division of the Alaska railroad out of commission for 20 days. The cloudburst, accompanied by a warm gale, denuded even the mountain peaks of snow. It has been customary for the first heavy snows to lie all winter. But this season, in southwestern Alaska, several times snow fell in quantities only to be melted again. Winter seemed reluctant to take hold.

Log of a Ship.
An instrument towed by a vessel by which the distance traveled is ascertained is called the log. The record of the ship's speed is therefore called the log, and this report is often extended to a full nautical report of the voyage.

Easy Lessons in AUCTION BRIDGE
New Series

COPYRIGHT 1923 BY HOYLE, JR.

ARTICLE No. 17

There is the greatest difference in the world between the forward bidder at auction and the rubber player. The former takes chances at the proper time while the latter takes chances without rhyme or reason. A sound bidder who plays a forward game in the hardest play to play, the rubber player, on the other hand, usually is of a conservative nature. He considers an overbid a personal affront and promptly rebids his own suit whether or not such rebid is justifiable. Needless to say the rubber bidder is an easy player to beat because he is really his own worst opponent.

On the other hand, the cautious player, who always sticks closely to convention, often overlooks a sure chance to win or save the game. There is nothing more irritating than to have a cautious player for a partner when the score is game all and the opponents have made a bid which probably will win them game and rubber. The cautious player looks stolidly at his cards and unless he can figure out a conventional bid, passes, thus losing another rubber. Under such circumstances, the forward player is always on the job. He realizes that any justifiable bid should be made, whether or not it measures up to the conventional standards. One player has aptly said that at such times, the only convention worth following is: "Let there be bidding."

Recently, one of these forward players made an original bid of four hearts and failed to make his bid by three tricks, a loss of 150 points as the contract was undoubled. His partner, one of the cautious type, severely criticized the bid, overlooking the fact that it saved game. The opponents had an easy game in spades but neither of them was strong enough to bid four spades. There are many such forward bids that, even if unsuccessful, save game and rubber. The point to remember in this connection is that an attack is often the best defense. If you want to win at auction, take the offensive at every opportunity.

The following hand is a good example of sound, forward bidding:

Hearts—A, 5, 6	Clubs—10, 5	Diamonds—Q, 10, 9, 8, 6	Spades—Q, 8, 5, 2
Hearts—K, 9, 7, 6	Clubs—Q, J, 9, 4, 3, 2	Diamonds—7, 3	Spades—3
Hearts—A, 10, 4, 3	Clubs—A, K, 8	Diamonds—A, K, 5	Spades—J, 6, 4

Score: Rubber game: A-B, 10; Y-Z, 0. B dealt and bid one spade and Z doubled. A, having a very weak hand and no support for his partner's spade bid, bid two clubs, fearing that Y might leave the double in. Y, having a doubtful stopper in the spade suit, was afraid to bid two no-trump, therefore decided to bid three diamonds. B passed and Z, a very good player, figured that he and his partner probably had the spades stopped so bid three no-trump. This deduction was based on A's denial bid and B's failure to rebid. As a result Z made three no-trump, game and rubber.

Solution to Problem No. 5

Hearts—J, 10, 9, 3	Clubs—A, 6, 5	Diamonds—8, 6, 5	Spades—A, Q, 8
Hearts—8, 4	Clubs—K, Q, 10, 8, 7, 3	Diamonds—J, 3	Spades—7, 6, 2
Hearts—A, K, Q, 7, 6, 2	Clubs—9	Diamonds—9, 7	Spades—10, 9, 5, 4

The final bid was four hearts by Z. A opened the jack of diamonds and B trumped. Z trumping the third round with the queen of hearts. The problem is for Z to make game against any defense. This is a problem that can be solved only by "stripping," that is, by taking all the cards of certain suits out of a player's hand before allowing him to obtain the lead. Z's play should be so planned that when he leads the spade, B should have only spades and diamonds; that is, B's hand should be "stripped" of clubs and hearts. Therefore at trick four, Z should lead the nine of clubs, win with the ace in dummy and return the suit, trumping the second round in his own hand. He should now lead the ace of hearts, and a low heart, winning the second round with dummy's nine of hearts and lead the last club from A opened the jack of diamonds and B trumped. He should now lead the ten of spades from his own hand and dummy, allowing B to win the trick with the jack of spades. B must now lead either a spade or diamond having no cards of the other suits. If the former, he leads to the ace queen in dummy and therefore loses the balance of the tricks. If he leads a diamond, Z trumps in his own hand with his last trump and discards the queen of spades in dummy, thereby winning the remaining tricks. The play of this hand is very instructive and should be carefully studied. The principle of "stripping" a hand comes up frequently and is a consistent trick winner for those who understand when and where to apply it.

ROBBED BANK TO FRIGHTEN AIDS

Former Head of Wisconsin Depository Freed by Jury.

WEIRD YARN WON ACQUITTAL

Charles H. Basford, aged former president of the defunct People's State Bank of Oneonta, Wis., was freed on the witness stand in his trial for embezzlement that he took $11,200 from the bank vault, kept it ten days, denied taking it when the district attorney accused him of it and returned the money when confronted by two other bank officers and the prosecutor. But a jury of ten farmers and two merchants acquitted him, because he said, he merely took the money to frighten the vice president and cashier of the bank, who, he said, were traveling a pace that was leading them and the bank to ruin.

Basford, who is sixty-eight years old and comes from a wealthy pioneer southwestern Wisconsin family, resided from the bank board in April, 1922. It was announced that ill health had forced his retirement. Andrew Zenz, a retired farmer, was elected president. Last May Zenz became involved in a controversy in the congregation of a local church. The bank president's faction finally succeeded in ousting Rev. Father G. Kaiser, and the priest's supporters immediately withdrew their money from the bank. The small run had not seriously impaired the institution, but it was rumored that discrepancies would be found if the records were examined.

Note Leads to Closing Bank.

On the night of June 5 last, two state bank examiners arrived in Lancaster. President Zenz was away on a business trip; Leslie A. Clark, the vice president, was attending a boxing bout at Madison and J. Harold Pugh, the cashier, was unaware of the crisis until he saw a seal on the vault. The following morning the examiners hung a "closed" sign on the door, five minutes after they discovered a note in the bank which read: "We can't stand the gift. Arrest Basford." It bore Pugh's signature.

Basford was arrested the next day, but Pugh and Clark could not be found. Four days later they were found in Chicago and they agreed to waive extradition if the district attorney would permit them to return to Lancaster before warrants were served on them. The request was granted.

The bankers were arraigned on charges of embezzlement; they pleaded not guilty and were released on $10,000 bail. Pugh's bondsman afterward withdrew his money and the cashier, after spending three weeks in Chicago, returned to Oneonta on bail and was given a sentence of 17 years in the State penitentiary. Clark was indicted on a nominal charge of embezzlement of $20,000 and he is now awaiting trial.

$250,000 Believed Missing.

Bank examiners have been trying to unravel the tangled skein of the bank's affairs since last June, but the exact amount that has been lost has not been determined. Conservative estimates place it in excess of $250,000.

The failure of the bank 15 months after Basford's retirement, with its attendant distress which affected hundreds of Grant county families, had overshadowed the former president's case. So when he went on trial on a charge of embezzling $12,000, the proceedings were held to be unimportant, except to throw light upon the bank's affairs for two years preceding the crash.

The trial lasted two days and only nine witnesses were examined, but the testimony of two of them formed one of the weirdest stories ever heard in a Wisconsin bank case.

Story of Former Cashier.

Pugh, the ex-cashier, now a convict, was the first witness. In direct examination by the state and cross-examination by the defense he told this story:

In the afternoon of March 23, 1922, Pugh asked Basford not to set the time lock on the vault that afternoon as he intended to return that night to work and he wanted to get at the books. Pugh went to sleep after dinner and he did not get to the bank until about 9:30. There had been a light fall of snow in the early evening and he saw footprints on the floor. He entered and found the vault open and several cards, on which were marked an obsolete combination of the vault, which was known only to the three officers, on a chair.

Pugh entered the vault where he found silver dollars strewn on the floor. There had been $12,426.69 in the bank at the close of the day's business. But 22 packages, each containing $500 in bank notes and a sack containing $500 in gold and silver, had disappeared since 3 p. m. Pugh telephoned to Vice President Clark. When Clark reached the bank he called President Basford, and, when the latter failed to appear, they went to his house. After a brief conference they called upon District Attorney Clementson, a stockholder.

Prosecutor's Unusual Proposal. Pugh suggested that the attorney question each of them in another room. Little light was thrown upon the affair during the three grillings. Basford persistently denied that he had left his house that night. He suggested that the insurance company be notified, but Pugh and Clark opposed this move. Finally the district attorney said:

"This is an inside job. You men go home now and return between 6 and 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. I want each of you to bring a bundle wrapped in a newspaper to my office. Do not put identifying marks upon them. I expect to find $12,426 in one of these packages. Of course, I don't know whose bundle it will be."

Pugh and Clark returned at the designated time. Clark was empty-handed, but Pugh had a bundle wrapped in newspaper. It contained overalls. Basford did not appear.

All clues pointed to Basford as the guilty man. Witnesses were found who said they had seen him enter the bank the night the money disappeared. When confronted with this evidence, he said:

"Oh, that's right. I went back but I had forgotten about it. Plumbers were working in the building that day and I wanted to make sure everything was locked up right."

President Returns $5,500.

Then on the morning of April 19, 1922, after he had repeatedly denied taking the money, Basford summoned the other bank officers and the district attorney to his house. He placed a tin box and a package wrapped in newspaper on the table. "There's the money. What do you think of me for a dead old fool?" was his remark. But the box and the bundle contained only $5,500. Basford later returned $340 in gold and paid the balance when he sold his bank stock, at the district attorney's request.

Pugh's sensational story was corroborated by Clementson and Clark. The records of the bank showed a series of debentures extending back to 1916, according to Charles L. Brown, deputy state bank commissioner, a defense witness. Nowhere in the records could evidence be found that Basford had taken money, he said.

Then Basford took the stand. His story follows:

He went to the bank about 9 o'clock the night of March 23, 1922, to see that the building had been properly locked up. Pugh had asked him to leave the vault open after banking hours. It was still open and he saw an opportunity to teach his associates a lesson. Basford declared that he had been alarmed by reports that Pugh and Clark were setting "a fast pace" in social and sporting circles. He had frequently protested vigorously when they asked him to leave the vault open at night.

Tried to Involve Basford.

He took the money, laid the old combination cards on a chair to make his associates believe bank robbers had found them, and went home.

Basford denied that he knew he was under suspicion until Clementson accused him about a week after the money was taken. He said he did not tell the district attorney the truth because he was a stockholder and an intimate friend of the other officers and the effect of his hoax would be nullified.

The defense contended that Pugh and Clark dragged Basford into the spotlight when the bank failed to shield themselves. The fact that the cashier and vice president worked in the bank many nights was pointed to as evidence that they were falsifying the records and when they finally succeeded in making a confession they accomplished the bank's ruin.

So the jury decided Basford hadn't intended to steal the money.

Turkish Constitution as It Will Be Modified

Angora.—One of the first acts of the newly-elected assembly of Angora will be to create a separate ministry of marine, which, since the end of the World war, has been a bureau attached to the ministry of defense. Then will come, according to messages received at Stamboul, the following modifications of the Turkish constitution:

The duration of the life of the assembly to be four years.

The president's term of office to last six years.

FORMER ENEMIES' SONS AT SCHOOL

Young Funston and Aguinaldo Are Students at West Point Military Academy.

West Point, N. Y.—That time makes queer changes is once more illustrated in the case of two boys who are now students at West Point Military Academy. One is the son of Aguinaldo, the former leader of the Filipino Insurrectionists, who gave Uncle Sam many uneasy months before he was captured, and the other is the son of the officer who captured him, the brave, fearless fighting man of Kansas, Gen. Frederick Funston. Both are pupils at West Point and both are young fellows who, one of these days, may be called upon to unite the sword in defense of their common country—those youngsters whose fathers were enemies and the leading actors in one of the thrilling dramas in American history.

Story of Aguinaldo's Capture.
The story of how Fred Funston captured Emilio Aguinaldo has been read probably as often as that of Washington's stand at Valley Forge or the surrender of Lee to Grant at Appomattox courthouse, but it will never lose its thrill, and it stands as an episode in United States history that never fails to make the most tired schoolboy turn to his lessons with vim.

Spain ceded the Philippine islands to the United States after the War of 1898, but the Americans found that their troubles just were beginning; that the natives in the islands constantly were rising against the United States, fighting Uncle Sam's soldiers, killing them, making it impossible for the troops to come home.

The prime mover of this continual trouble was Emilio Aguinaldo. He had fought Spain's rule in the islands, so ardent was he in the cause of Philippine independence, and he fought the United States rule. The natives rallied enthusiastically to his cause. He was not a military man in appearance and one never would have pictured him as a soldier, but he held absolute sway over the natives; they called him "General," and would live or die for him at a word.

"Get Aguinaldo and we have broken up the insurrection," the American army men used to say, but the difficulty was to get Aguinaldo. The man and his followers were elusive. Aguinaldo became almost a myth, he was rumored to be in so many different places at so many different times. The United States knew that with him at large there never could be hope of peace in the Philippines.

Plan for Rebel's Capture.
Gen. Fred Funston was in charge at San Isidro when one of Aguinaldo's runners was brought before him. The man had been captured in the up-country, and came over to the American side, and promised to disclose where his chief was hiding.

"The dictator is in hiding at Palanan," he told Funston and proved it to the American's satisfaction by a letter he carried.

Palanan was a hamlet eight miles from the coast, on the east side of Luzon. It was one of the hardest places in the islands to go to, but Funston's mind was made up. He was going to get Aguinaldo.

He thought over every available plan and finally hit on one. He and a group of fellow officers would travel to Palanan in the company of a band of natives loyal to the United States. He would pretend to be a prisoner and the natives to be insurrectionists. It was a daring move, but it was the only plan that looked at all feasible. To capture Aguinaldo it was necessary to come upon the man by surprise, and he must be caught, not killed. His death would excite him as a martyr in the eyes of the natives, and the insurrections would go on and on interminably.

Funston had a conference with Generals McArthur and Wheaton in Manila. They told him he had a good plan, but that he was going to certain death. He went ahead, however.

Some native Malabares were given second-hand military clothes and guns. Funston got some letters signed by Aguinaldo, one of Aguinaldo's copy letters, and the party started out March 6, 1901 on the United States groundship Visiting from Manila. It contained 51 men. All of them knew that were losing their lives in a venture in which all the odds seemed to be against them. But they were named either to capture Aguinaldo or to give their lives in their most desperate effort to do so.

Fire at Aguinaldo's Guard.
Everybody knew by heart the story to be told. That was that the Malabares had captured an American scouting party, after killing several men, and were holding in their prisoners. The "prisoners" were Funston and his fellow officers. One wrong word from a member of the native band and the Americans would be shot down.

The party landed March 14 at Cavite, under the cover of darkness and disembarked. Aguinaldo's hiding place was about 100 miles away. A day was spent at Cavite and Funston's story was tried on the natives there. They took it as a bluff and gave his men food to take with them on the tortuous route from Cavite to Palanan.

There was a week of marching. Torrents of rain fell without ceasing. The food ran out, the men grew weak and it seemed as though Funston's great effort was to be blotted by starvation. The last day's march was made on empty stomachs. But it brought the leaders close to Palanan. The Malabares were about 100 men, and the other "prisoners" were about 100. Aguinaldo was with them, in a house in the village. He had an escort of about fifty men, including his military staff. The supposed "prisoners" called on him and told him of their capture of the Americans. The Malabares outside of the house unable to restrain themselves, opened on Aguinaldo's escort and killed two of them.

Capture of Aguinaldo.
Aguinaldo believed the shots were from his own men, by way of celebrating the arrival of American prisoners, and he called to them to stop. At that moment Aguinaldo, one of the rebels, leaped upon him, threw him under a table and sat on him. The door opened and a staff of American entered.

"I am Frederick Funston of the United States army," he said, "and you are now a prisoner of war." Aguinaldo could not believe it. "Is this not some joke?" he demanded.

He was assured it was not. He and his band were led down to the coast, put aboard the Vicksburg, and taken to Manila. There he was nominally a prisoner, but the United States gave him very liberal treatment, and on April 19 he issued his famous declaration which brought the two-year war of the insurrectionists in the Philippines to an end.

"He was the best Filipino I ever brought in contact with," Funston said, in speaking of him. And Aguinaldo congratulated Funston in writing on the success of the American's daring enterprise.

Now his son and Funston's are comrades at school, and have pledged their lives to bear arms and fight battles of the country Aguinaldo opposed so bitterly.

General Funston is dead, while Aguinaldo is living the peaceful life of a farmer just outside of Manila.

New Trade Treaty With

Russ Favored by Serbs

Berlin.—The idea of concluding a commercial treaty with Soviet Russia is becoming more and more popular in Serbia, according to the Berlin Rul. The correspondent of this paper asserts that Mr. Nischich, the foreign minister, is in favor of this idea and that another diplomat summarized as follows the arguments urging the re-orientation of commercial relations with the Soviets: "The existing Russian government has reconstituted all the traditional methods of Russian diplomacy and 'reopened' Pan-Slavism. It follows many of the precepts of his predecessor, Mr. Sazonov." Serbia, as a Slavonic country, is naturally longing for the restoration of the relations which for so many years united Russia to the Balkan Slavs.

Germans Again Using Quills.

Leipzig.—Germans are returning to the use of the quill because of the high cost of steel pens. An ordinary steel pen now costs 200,000,000 marks, and is beyond the reach of many Germans.

Mystery of Missing

Nuts From Truck Solved

Iron Mountain, Mich.—John Stefanski, this city, owns a rooster that is very fond of automobile bolt nuts. He swallowed an army of them that he had upon a repair job on a truck.

The rooster was killed and five bolt nuts were removed from his throat. His carcass served as a Sunday dinner for the Stefanski family.

While P. Poncheri was making repairs to the engine, he placed the nuts on the ground, one by one. The rooster remained close to the truck, and as each nut was dropped he walked over and swallowed it.

When the mechanic began to reassemble the engine he wondered where the nuts had disappeared. He noticed the rooster's throat was bulged out, and concluded he was the thief.

An operation was decided upon—the parts were recovered and the truck was put together.

Take Bar Mugs as Souvenirs.

Minch.—The State beer house, where hundreds of people drink out of huge mugs with lids, is deploring the loss of 5,000 of these which were taken away as souvenirs during festival week, besides 400 knives and forks and many decorated plates. In five days nearly a million dollars were lost for the athletic festival. It is suggested many of these purchased the mugs, plates and cutlery.

AMERICANS SLIDE OVER

LINE MINUS PASSPORTS

Luckless Trip Down Mountain Causes Awa.s.s Six Weeks Delay in Czechoslovakia.

Almost all Americans know it is a good thing to be provided with a passport in Europe, and carry the necessary documents always, but occasionally some adventurous soul takes a chance on going without and runs into bushels of trouble as a result. Trouble traveled hand in hand with two American aviators who without passports slipped over the boundary line of Czechoslovakia recently and was their close companion for six weeks.

Merion C. Cooper of Jacksonville, Fla., and George M. Crawford of Wilmington, Del., flew through the war in France under the American flag and later joined the Kosciuszko air squadron in Poland. Together with some Polish friends they went on a mountain climbing expedition among the Carpathian peaks in southern Poland. On one of the excursions Cooper and Crawford and a Polish count, roped together Alpine fashion, lost their way and were unable to find a snowed mountain side and were unable to stop. Before they realized it the three had crossed the Polish-Czechoslovakian boundary line at the rate of about a mile a minute and landed in a heap in a snowbank at the mountain's base.

Rescuers, among them Czechoslovakian customs officials, soon reached the party. Not even the Polish count had a passport, let alone the two Americans, and it took the party exactly six weeks to establish their identity and secure permission to return to Poland.

Fashions Change.
It became so uncomfortable to walk a boy that whipping went out of fashion.

INSTRUMENT IS USED TO MEASURE HEAT OF STARS

Radiometer: Revelations Upset All Former Impressions.

Washington.—Using a radiometer, Dr. C. G. Abbot of the Smithsonian Institution, has succeeded in measuring the heat of the stars to the hundred-millionth degree.

The experiments, which were carried on at Mount Wilson, Cal., with the aid of the great 100-inch reflector there, began in July, and the results are regarded by Smithsonian officials here as of the highest importance to natural scientists.

Nine stars were observed, Rigel, Vega, Sirius, Capella, Procyon, Aldebaran, Betelgeuse, Alaph and Heracles representing the principal types from the blue down to the very red ones.

"Astronomers have a very definite impression," said a statement at the institution, "based on other kinds of studies, as to what sort of results might be expected from these heat spectrum investigations. But the outcome proved a great surprise. For instance, Vega and Sirius are classed together as both blue-white hydrogen stars, with few lines showing in their photographic spectra and both supposedly nearly twice as hot as the sun.

Judge of the astonishment of the Mount Wilson observers to find Vega showing its maximum spectral heat a

Speeder Gets 5 Days on Bread and Water

Des Moines, Ia.—Five days in jail on bread and water was the sentence passed by Judge Tom L. Sellers here upon W. A. Swab, who had been convicted for the second time within a few days of violating the speed laws.

Judge Sellers refused Swab's plea that he be permitted to pay a heavy fine instead of going to jail.

great way further than the violet than Sirius, whose maximum heat is not very much nearer the violet than that of our sun. Still more remarkable is Rigel, for it shows two maxima. One occurs, as expected, quite as far toward the violet as that of Vega. But the other, the greater one, occurs very near that of the sun.

The new study, astronomers believe, will give a lever to attack the difficult task of learning the physical nature of the stars, although it was said that although the present device can measure one-hundred-millionth of a degree, the instrument for next year's work must be able to measure the billionth of a degree better.

The instrument used, known as the Nicholas radiometer, consists of two vanes suspended by a thread of two quartz fibers, each one-tenth thousandth of an inch thick. When moved by a beam of light on one vane, the torsion of the twisting thread was communicated to a microscopic mirror and a beam of light was reflected on a scale.

Count Works Way Across Atlantic as Ship Waiter

New York.—If Franz Josef Ludwig Gazzalotti hadn't tried so hard to keep himself from being called a "count" probably nobody on the steamer Ryndam would have dubbed him one. But, somehow, it leaked out that this man, who worked his way overseas as a waiter, was a scion of the old-time Austrian nobility. The "count" made these admissions:

"My grandfather was a count and my father was wealthy. He educated me at the University of Kalksburg, where sons of nobility went to college. But I am ashamed to be called a count now. This is no day for counts. My family is down and out."

PRINCE IN U. S. TO GET PAINTINGS

Russian Nobleman to Redeem Art Sold to Millionaire.

HELPED TO SLAY RASPUTIN

Prince Felix Youssoupoff of Russia, who is reported to have been the leader of a group of noblemen who slew Gregory Rasputin, the monk who, as confessor of the czarina, was said to have exerted a considerable influence on the destinies of the empire, arrived in New York recently on the Berengaria.

The prince, in the days before the revolution, was one of the wealthiest nobles in Russia. He is thirty-five years old, the husband of Irene, daughter of Grand Duke Alexander Michailovitch and Grand Duchess Xenia, sister of the late Czar Nicholas, and a member of the Sunarokoff-Eston branch of one of the oldest families in Russia.

The arrival of the prince is expected to stir up one of the most extraordinary controversies over precious art objects that America has known.

Wants to Redeem Portraits. The purpose of his visit, it is reported, is to buy back from Joseph E. Widener, Philadelphia millionaire and owner of the most valuable private art collection in the world, two portraits in oil, three centuries old, which Mr. Widener bought from the Russian noble for more than $500,000.

Prince Youssoupoff.

In desperate need of cash two years ago, Prince Felix sold the paintings with the understanding that he would have the right to buy them back at the same price, with interest added, within two and one-half or three years. Mr. Widener specified that the prince might buy them back only if he agreed not to sell them again. A contract with the recapture clause containing these two provisions was signed.

Reveals P. Brandt Row. The two paintings, "A Portrait of a Man" and "A Portrait of a Woman," are said to be originals from the brush of the Dutch master, Rembrandt. The interest which the negotiations will arouse is expected to revive the Rembrandt controversy started recently by Dr. John C. Van Dyke.

The art authority expressed his doubts that the two pictures were true Rembrandts and said they might be Vermeers, which would make their value even greater. Dr. William R. Valentiner, another art critic, credited the portraits to Rembrandt.

Date Back to Peter the Great. Painted about 1690, the portraits, which art experts agree are superbly done and of great monetary and artistic value, came into the possession of the Youssoupoff family during the reign of Peter the Great. For years they hung in the wall of the prince's palace in Petersburg, viewed only upon order of the czar, until Prince Felix brought them out of Russia during the revolution. They were bought by Mr. Widener in London and sent to his Longwood gallery.

The prince, it is reported, will offer a collection of rare jewels for sale in an effort to raise the money to buy back the paintings.

THE UPSIDE DOWN FLYER

Cyle Horchen's letter head puts your eye instantly over to the left-hand margin. There is small blue letters in this.

FEATURING

among others.

Have you noticed that you go on and discover on the right and left margins other astonishing legends, such as "Has Flowa Approximately 200,000 Miles," or "Performing on Trapeze 2,000 Feet in the Air," and gradually your eyes come to rest on "If Done in the Air We Do It," with the conviction that Mrs. Horchen must have been learning these things since before airplanes were invented. Then you discover—if you're as lucky as I was—the picture of an undeniably pretty girl, who isn't the least bit modest about the date of her birth. She discovered America, via Kansas, Kan., in March, 1899. Since then she's found time to get an education in Portland and Seattle. For business success she's come back to the same country. Horchen's Aerial shows have headquarters in Wichita. But Mrs. Horchen explains that she has to be on the road pretty continually—by which I take it she means in the sky—so she gives her "home folks' address" at Kansas, just like a girl who never goes even to the county seat.

In a letter written in July she told me that she had just made a new woman's altitude record of 16,329 feet while flying at St. Louis on July 5.

She's been in commercial aviation four years, parachute jumping two years. (Somehow that simple record of a year or two years to learn one new form of control over herself and her machine gives one a thrill of realization of the hugeness of each victory.)

As a regular job, Mrs. Horchen specializes on carrying passengers commercially. The last half year has kept her at this work very steadily. On her present notch stick of achievement she has chosen to keep the record of miles flown. Counting from January, 1923, she is aiming to make 20,000 miles before winter shuts down on her job of aerial taxi driver.

"Mounted Theology" New Study for U. S. Chaplains

Washington.—Army chaplains are to include "mounted theology" in a special course provided for them at the Chaplains' school, Fort Wayne, Mich. A War department announcement shows that the chaplains themselves have coined that phrase to describe the course in equitation they are required to take during their course.

They will also receive instruction in practical methods of religious work in the army and a limited amount of study in drill, court-martial procedure and guard duty. Ten chaplains have been assigned to the course at Fort Wayne.

Five Thousand Japs Going to Brazil.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 4225 K. Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Beten out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least escape the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

DANGEROUS TO DRIVE AT 60

Survey Shows Accidents Are Greater at This Age.

Fifty is the "dangerous age" in motoring, according to a traffic accident survey made in four cities last year and presented before the Southern Medical Association in convention at Washington recently by Dr. J. J. Durrett of Memphis, Tenn.

The survey shows that the majority of drivers figuring in automobile mishaps were more than fifty years old and the general age of pedestrians injured was above fifty or below forty. Pedestrians were blamed in the survey for 41 per cent of the accidents. The report was based on observations in Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis and Birmingham.

SCIENTIST CALLS MAN, STAR ALIKE

Harvard Professor Says People Are Made of Nothing Unusual or Exotic

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard professors have started an interesting experiment, the first symposium of a series in which speakers, after finishing their addresses in the room hall, repeated them to another audience in an adjoining hall. "The Origin of Life" was the subject of the symposium. The speakers were Prof. H. A. Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory; Prof. Edward C. Jeffrey, an authority on botany, and Prof. K. R. Lipp, whose field is ecological history.

In opening Professor Shapley said: "Representing the diverse points of view of astronomy, biology, theology, we three are here tonight to discuss this fundamental problem, 'The Origin of Life,' with each other. You may listen in if you care to. We are not here to pretend that we know what is the origin of life—far from that. We are here to confess that we do not know."

"We are three of a kind; all interested in the relation of human life to the universe of things, each looking at the problem from his own structure of study and training, and all hopelessly futile in getting to a final answer. But by discussing the subject we may learn just what the problem is, we may clear away some of the superstitions, prejudices and woolly thoughts regarding the origin of life. We may show to each other and to you who listen in that subjects such as these gain by synthetic treatment."

"The rapid progress of the natural sciences during the last generation, or even during the last decade, has supplied abundant reasons for restating our views of the importance of life in the universe. There is one reason, perhaps, why we should consider that life now has more significance than was formerly assigned to it. The analyses of the chemical constitution of man, beast, rock and star by the chemist, the geophysicist and the astrophysicist have brought to light the remarkable uniformity of atomic structure throughout the whole universe."

Not Chemically Unusual.

"Little as we human beings are, so temporary in time and space, yet the chemical elements of which we are composed are also the predominant elements in the crust of the earth and are prominent if not predominant components in the structure of the fiery and gaseous stars. We are, chemically, made of nothing unusual or exotic, we are a part of the general scheme of things, and we could ask for no higher immortality than to be, as we seem to be, made of the same stuff as the eternal stars. The knowledge that the same kind of electrons and protons and chemical atoms make up living organisms in space seems to enhance the significance of life."

"But on the other hand, there are at least five modern products of scientific research which seem to me to diminish, almost to the vanishing point, the significance of life in the universal scheme. One of these developments is due to researches in physiology, and the others, as might be expected, are deductions from the studies of stars and planets."

"The duration of various recognizable stellar masses has been found by recent research to be immeasurably greater than we previously thought. We no longer think the earth is comparable in age with the stars. We see the origin of the earth and its subsequent development of life as one detail in the recent history of the evolution of stars, and now better recognize the brevity of organic existence."

Sun Placed Indifferently.

"Astronomers now find that the solar system is not centrally situated with respect to the stars, but that the sun is indifferently placed, far from the center of the galactic system. Not only is it centrally situated, but it is ordinary in size and brightness. In the same way that we had to give up the geocentric idea of the universe, we now give up the heliocentric, and with that surrender the significance of life decreases."

"But from the astronomer's point of view the most potent factor in decreasing our respect for the problem of life is the prevalent interpretation of the origin of the planetary system. The nebular hypothesis has been abandoned, and in giving that up we give up the idea that the birth of planets (that may later bear life) is the normal process in the evolution of the star. We now see in the birth of the earth a fortuitous circumstance—the encounter of our sun, some thousands of millions of years ago, with a still greater star, resulting in the tidal disruption of the outer layers of the solar atmosphere. From the debris of that encounter the planets have formed, and because no similar encounter has since occurred the family of fragments have been maintained long enough for the development of prebiological chemistry, at least, on one of them."

Nature of Material Life.

In conclusion Professor Shapley said: "To summarize the astronomer's contribution to the symposium on the origin of life, we may say what can be said of the nature of material life, and his contribution will be that it is a highly complicated ensemble of chemical actions, subject to the laws of the physical universe—an unstable and very delicately balanced chemistry."

"What can be said of the origin of life? Apparently that is not one place in a natural chemical evolution—the inevitable development of matter and energy when the physical conditions in the environment are right."

"What can be said of the place of life in space? Trivial; an organic organism that has the same basic parts of the surface of one small planet that is itself a small fragment of a star—a star that is a small fragment of a galaxy."

and in a system of thousands of billions of similar stars.

"What can be said of the place of life in time? Truly, the stars evolved and revolved for some billions of years before they will doubtless continue to fulfill their destiny, to fall on quite unimportant, but long after the sun has evaporated and the terrestrial experiment is over."

"What can be said of the significance of life, if any, in the march of universal evolution? What of its meaning? Nothing!"

Prof. Edward C. Jeffrey, authority on plant morphology, was the second speaker. A summary of his remarks on "The Origin of Life on Land" follows:

"The biologist seems to be justified in adopting neither the mechanistic nor the vitalistic attitude in regard to the origin of life, since we know nothing whatever about the manner in which living matter made its appearance upon our earth. The best informed biologists frankly admit that they know nothing regarding the origin of life."

He then gave a definition of life, or rather of living matter, and went on: "There are two kinds of living matter, plants and animals. The former are intimately related in their essential activities to potassium, while the latter show an equally close relation to the alkali metal sodium. Plants are and always have been much more abundant than animals and have, as a consequence, exerted a much more fundamental influence upon our earth and its atmosphere."

"The definition of life upon land," he said, "depends on organization rather than activities. Land animals are constructed to breathe air by means of lungs, while water animals respire water through their gills. Land plants are provided with an elaborate mechanism for absorbing, conducting and evaporating water, which is entirely absent in typical water plants. There are, however, many cases of land plants living in water and fewer of water plants living on land."

Similar Animal Contrasts.

"On the animal side there are similar contrasts between essential organization and the mode of life. For example, whales and porpoises are fundamentally terrestrial in their structure, yet they inhabit the sea. On the other hand, many aquatic animals, such as the crustacea, are able to carry on some sort of existence on land. It is generally conceded that aquatic forms were the ancestors of both land plants and land animals."

"Since it is very generally conceded that biology is fundamentally a historical science, in view of the essential characteristics of living matter, it follows that the early forms of plants and animals are of great importance. On the other hand, our knowledge is greatly restricted, both by the poverty of material and also by the fact that we are, as a rule, familiar with the hard parts or skeleton only, of the earlier forms. In the case of plants, we are in a much better position, since the structural features of the earlier land plants are frequently and sometimes abundantly preserved in all their parts."

"The Devonian supplies us with the earliest trustworthy evidence of plant life on land. In that period the higher types of animals were still, for the most part, confined to the waters and had made no important excursion on the land. In other words, from the animal point of view, the Devonian was the Age of Fishes."

"Recent discoveries of Devonian land plants in both Europe and America give us for the first time a rather complete picture of the earliest high life on land. The most primitive Devonian terrestrial plants were leafless and rootless and presented a bizarre and archaic appearance, both as a result of their primitive organization, but still more because they lacked the grace of foliage, which lends charms to the denizens of our modern fields and forests."

"These Devonian plants furnish strong proof for the doctrine of evolution or descent, since they actually realize the organization, which has been theoretically predicted for the earliest land plants."

SYNTHETIC ROCKS PRODUCED IN DAY

Laboratory Reproductions Equal
Earth's Finest Work—Use
Nature's Processes.

Washington.—What is claimed to be the latest wonder of modern science is the man-made reproduction of synthetic minerals, to be followed in a few months by synthetic rocks. The reproductions are said to equal mother earth's finest workmanship and to require less than a millionth part of the estimated time needed by her.

They are the fruits of years of patient research and laborious hours in the laboratory; of hazardous experiments with powerful machines capable of exerting pressure of 200,000 pounds to the square inch—all carried to their present stage of success at the geological laboratory of the Carnegie institute of Washington.

To manufacture minerals and rocks science is simply duplicating nature's processes, but in accomplishing the same results, on a much smaller scale, of course, in a single working day. Nature took bewildering ages and smelted her wonders in the vast forges of the earth; science in fabricating its copies in a few highly polished and innocent-looking little steel "bombs."

Same Minerals Used.
Mother earth manufactured her minerals and rocks, science has learned, by means of extreme heat and extreme pressure. First the minerals known to be contained in the mineral under experiment are poured into a tiny tube made of pure platinum, one end of which is sealed by solid gold. The opposite end is then sealed and this container placed in the "bomb."

The bomb is made of the finest steel obtainable. Its aperture is small and its walls extremely thick in comparison, all making it capable of withstanding the terrific test it is about to undergo. A small electric furnace made of the same, although impure, constituents of rubies, is placed in the "bomb" and the apparatus sealed. Then it is ready for the ordeal of searing heat and gigantic pressures.

Both are applied gradually, the heat sometimes being permitted to register as high as 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit and the pressure as much as 60,000 pounds to the square inch. Gradually the gauges creep up, and up and up. Suddenly they relax and the pressure drops. The watchful attendants know "something" has happened inside the bomb and the heat and pressure are quickly turned off. When the platinum container is cut open mineral particles or rocks, whichever the case may be, are found inside.

Rocks That Will Bend.
Not only are these minerals the replicas of nature's own products, but in many instances purer—completely free from the discolored impurities that are common in the natural materials. For instance the jadeite made at the geological laboratory of the Carnegie institute is light yellow in color. Natural jade is green. The green coloring, however, is supplied by an impurity, and the synthetic jade readily could be made the same shade by including the impurity in its constituents.

Science has gone nature one better in its experiments. It has discovered that by injecting more water into the rocks it can make them susceptible to bending—gelatin-like. If still more water is forced into them under heat and pressure they are quite readily reduced to liquid—liquid rock, in fact. But when the uninitiated visitor to the laboratory opens his eyes in wonder at such spectacles, the scientists simply laugh and quite learnedly say: "Why, there's nothing so remarkable about that."

Able to Compress Water.
Treats with high pressure have also disproved some old theories. The fact is that water cannot be compressed. Science has discovered that water can not only be compressed, but that under a pressure of 100,000 pounds to the square inch it freezes into a cake of ice so thickly condensed that it sinks like rock in water. Mercury, too—the "unfreezable" mineral used in thermometers—can be frozen under a pressure of 170,000 pounds to the square inch.

Science has yet to learn, however, to duplicate the wonders of nature at the same cost before it can compete with her in the commercial world. Mother earth can do her work so vastly cheaper in that respect. For instance, if you were determined to have a synthetic tombstone, science could probably make you a granite one—but it would cost something like a billion dollars. Fortunes spent in research and past experiments must of course be figured in "cost production." The important fact, however, is that man can now make granite.

Of far greater value for the present are the laboratory's contributions to the study of geology. Its experiments have resulted in scientists being able to determine accurately the feasibility of the various kinds of rocks and hence the speed with which earthquake waves pass through each kind. Thus, by timing the passage of an earthquake wave at different stations it is now possible for the experts to say with accuracy of accuracy just what kind of rocks lie buried far beyond the reach of man in the respective areas.

NATIONAL ZOO BOTANICAL WHITE CHEEKED GEESE

Rare Birds Captured by Scientists in Alaska After Eight Years' Search.

The only white checked geese in captivity have just been added to the collection of North American waterfowl at the zoo at Washington. They are among the rarest of birds on this continent, and zoo officials have been seeking specimens for the past eight years without success until within the past week.

The four birds now at the park were obtained from Ernest P. Walker, chief fur warden for the United States Biological survey, who captured them last spring on tiny gooselings on Chignagof Island, southeast Alaska.

They are practically confined to the Alexander archipelago, and even on these islands they are not numerous. They breed in this very humid region, and remain there the year around.

They are the dark, east variety of the common Canada goose which flies over Washington on its way north in the spring. The entire family of these geese now is represented at the zoo by the Canada goose itself, the Hutchins goose, the carling goose and the white checked goose.

The new birds will be added to the collection in the North American waterfowl pond as soon as they recover from the effects of their long journey to Washington.

The white checked geese are known as the most devoted fathers and mothers in the entire bird kingdom. Neither of the pair ever leaves the goslings alone for a second during the brooding period. When they move the father goes first, then the chicks, and the mother brings up the rear of the party. They also are known as fierce fighters during the time. This family devotion is greater even than that among other goose species, where it has attained a high level.

The greater part of North American land fowl now are represented in the collection, the most complete in the world, according to Superintendent Hollister. Few of the sea fowl have been secured—so that practically thirty species are needed before the bird family will be complete.

It will be impossible to obtain many of the missing specimens, Mr. Hollister says, because they reach land only in infrequent places. Among the missing birds is the celebrated eider duck of the far north, which the zoo authorities are especially anxious to obtain.

Ship 100,000 Pounds of Live Eels.
Three specially constructed vessels cleared port from Whitehall, N. Y., bound for New York city from Quebec, with 100,000 pounds of live eels aboard. The total value is more than $7,000. Devices aboard the vessels permit the repeated intake and discharge of fresh water to keep alive and fresh the eels, which range in length from three to six feet.

FIND NEW FOSSIL IN OREGON

Petrified Specimen of Prehistoric Man—One Is Unidentified.

Part of a vertebra, no doubt that of a prehistoric monster, has been added to the collection of curios owned by A. O. Hollingsworth of Gladstone, Ore. This was found on the beach at Newport by Mr. Hollingsworth during his annual vacation at that resort. The portion of the vertebra found by Hollingsworth has been petrified, and is about six inches in length, and in circumference is about 16 inches. When found the curio was embedded in gravel and sand, and no doubt had been deposited there many years ago. The weight of the fossil is six pounds. It has not been classified.

O. H. S. MUST TRIUMPH

Defeat for Local Basketball in Game With Cobleskill Aggies Tomorrow Night Will Put Them Out of Running for Sectional Honors.

The most important game of basketball so far this season by the Yellow and White squad will occur Saturday evening in the school gymnasium when Oneonta High school will oppose the lightning fast Cobleskill Aggies in a game whose outcome will determine whether the local team plays Cobleskill High school for the championship of the sectional league. Defeat at the hands of the Aggies will put Oneonta out of the running and give the championship to C. H. S. while victory will permit the Yellow and White to contest further for the right to represent the section in the inter-sectional contests.

Richness has hit the local squad a body blow and the team which will go on the floor against the heavy Aggie squad will be a diminutive though fighting outfit. The lads have acquired a victory complex, however, and only exceptional playing on the part of the Aggies can keep Oneonta from annexing first honors when the teams meet tomorrow night.

Couch Riederer will start McGowan and Delaney as forwards, Glenn at center, and Molinari and Daley as guards. This combination has been playing together all the week and is a smoothly working outfit, although not as husky as the regular quintet.

HAD MUCH BOOZE ABOARD

TWO MEN APPREHENDED AT RIVER BRIDGE WITH LIBERAL SUPPLY.

Lewis Steinhardt of Fleischmanns and Fred Sitter of Andes held for Examination Before Commissioner Seybolt—Stuffed Found in Relief Car Which Had Been Sent From City to Bring L. Two Motorists Whose Car Had Become Disabled Near Davenport.

Lewis Steinhardt of Fleischmanns and Fred Sitter of Andes are under arrest at police headquarters held for arraignment before Deputy United States Commissioner Arthur Seybolt on the charge of illegal transportation of alcoholic liquors.

In the possession of these two men was found the following liquor: 24 quarts of wine, 22 quarts of whiskey, 22 bottles of gin and a five-gallon can containing about four and one-half gallons of what bears every resemblance to "moonshine" whiskey.

The arrest of the two men and the capture of the supply of "bootleg" stuff came about in a peculiar manner. Last evening a message was received at police headquarters that a motor car moving in this direction had hit a young woman near Stamford village and to halt and question all motorists and examine all cars for indications that they might be the cause of trouble.

While members of the force were engaged at this task at the River bridge one of the cars had no sooner been halted than it was discovered that it had a quantity of contraband goods aboard. It proved to be a Willys-Knight service car from a Market street garage driven by G. H. Sandell, an employee of the garage.

Further investigation disclosed that the car was carrying a quantity of a car to bring to the city two motorists whose car had become disabled above Davenport. A touring car equipped with chains was not available at the time and Mr. Sandell was accordingly sent with the service car to bring the men to the city. Mr. Sandell declares that he had no knowledge of the contents of the packages which the two men removed from the disabled car and placed in his car. He was looking after the engine of the disabled car to ascertain if possible the cause of the trouble and not being suspicious of the two men, paid little heed to the packages they had in their possession.

He declares the first indication he had of the nature of the contents was when the officers stopping him directed that he drive to police headquarters as there was "boots" aboard. Steinhardt and Sitter were held for arraignment and the service car will be held pending instruction for its disposal by Commissioner Seybolt. The booze is at headquarters, awaiting the arraignment of the two men. Sandell was requested to report at headquarters this morning.

No information was available last evening relative to the reported accident, but it is assumed that it was not of a serious nature, otherwise more details could have been received.

Something to Think About
By R. A. WALKER

THE LEADING PARTS

IN THEIR imaginations, the young men and women of these strangely perverted times early reach the conclusion that they are cast for the leading parts.

They are quite sure of their extraordinary abilities as they look about them and take note of their elders plodding day after day in some lowly sphere, from which they seem utterly helpless to escape.

Burdens which their parents are bearing with so much patience, stir in the breasts of these youngsters a spirit of resentment, but never an inclination to take hold and make the burden lighter.

They were not born for such drudgery; it is too degrading.

"The old folk," these supercilious sons and daughters will tell you in a moment of confidence, "are fools to work, plod and slave as they do. They never should have permitted themselves to get in the straits they are in."

Look at their clothes, gaudy hands and compare them with ours! In short, these ingrates, because of their smart attire and spous appearance, are quite sure that their parents are densely ignorant and behind the times, needing frequently to be told to dress better and be more particular about the care of their hands!

Beneath these commonplace clothes there beat the noblest hearts in the world, never tiring in their devotion, never counting the cost of sacrifice, made every hour in behalf of thankless offspring, not yet ripe enough in experience and wisdom to understand what is taking place about them.

Their little minds cannot grasp the meaning of the supreme love in the hearts of "the old folk," whose splendid devotion has no counterpart on earth, shining through the darkest night like the glorious stars of heaven.

It is the "old folk" who are playing the leading parts—the kindly parents whose shoulders are bent, whose hands are soiled from toil that their children may have a better start in life than was given them.

Give the "old folk" praise. Cheer them up as you greet them in the morning. Tell them how you love them when you say good night, and hear it in bloom you in their outpouring joy.

ROTARIANS EVEN COUNT

Best Kiwanis Bowlers Two Out of Three Games Wednesday Evening—Each Club Has Now Won One Match.

The bowling team of Oneonta Rotary club took sweet revenge Wednesday evening for their defeat last week at the hands of Kiwanis club, taking two out of the three games rolled on the Oneonta club alleys. Each club has now won a match and interest in the "rubber" match will be keen.

Exceptional bowling was not the rule. McKean and Laskaris were the only ones to hit over 500 for three games and their scores were not remarkable. The matches were more contested, however, and very exciting for both the participants and the rooters.

Wealthy Testator Wore Same Hat Twenty Years

New York.—Testimony as to the eccentricities of the late Eugene Tymeson of Yonkers was given recently before Surrogate Slater in White Plains in the second contest of the will by which he left his $300,000 estate to two women friends to the exclusion of his sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Archer and Mrs. Vienna Osterlander, and other relatives.

It was said Mr. Tymeson, who was seventy-three years old, had worn the same hat for 20 years; that he provided the streets in search of castaway cigarette boxes and answered himself with four pennies on his dining-room table, becoming indignant when a guest cracked one of the shell, saying they were what kept him in health. He was an inventor.

In February, 1921, Surrogate Slater took the case out of the hands of a jury and upheld the will. Since then his decision has been reversed by the Appellate division. Mrs. Little Sister Hamratty and Harrie Frederick of Yonkers are the beneficiaries under the will.

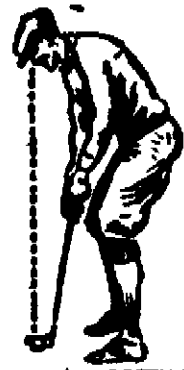

Circle and sphere were waiting through the weeks a few feet apart when Mr. Tymeson attempted to shift his gun. The gun was discharged and the boy fell to the ground.

McKenney carried the boy to a nearby road and placed him in a gunning automobile, which went to the Albany City hospital, via auto camp. Before the hospital was reached the boy was dead.

GOLF

PUTTING.

KEEP EYE DIRECTLY OVER BALL—DO NOT MOVE IT OFF UNTIL BALL IS HIT.

In putting, should the eye be kept directly over the ball or not?

Answered by TED RAY

The slogan of English golf. Winner of innumerable tournaments and member of the greatest golf combination in history—the team of "Vardon and Ray."

In putting, keep the eye directly over the ball, and be sure you do not move the eye off the ball until it is hit. It is just as important to keep the eye on the ball in putting as in any other stroke. In a short putt, especially, keep the eye plumb over the ball. If you are too close to the ball you will be looking at the outside of the ball; if you are too far away you will be looking at the inside of the ball, while if you get your eye plumb over the ball it will help you to swing your putter on a straighter line, and the ball will roll evenly.

Discover Traces of Ancient City of David

London.—Discovery of traces of the ancient City of David, reported from Jerusalem some time ago, is confirmed in a dispatch from Prof. Robert E. Macalister, leader of the joint expedition sent to the holy land by the Palestine Exploration fund and the Daily Telegraph. Prof. Macalister says he has every reason to believe that by a fortunate coincidence the expedition has discovered the remains of the mysterious "Millo" mentioned in the biblical description of David's fortifications in the Jebusite citadel he captured.

Let the Kiddies Romp Outdoors In All Weathers

There is Nothing Like Fresh Air Play to Build Sturdy Bodies. If Colds Come Treat Externally.

Children should play outdoors daily in winter as well as in summer. To keep them indoors so much is a mistake. For healthy growth they need and must have lots of outdoor exercise.

Of course, some colds will come as a result of exposure. But constant internal dosing must not be thought of.

Vicks' answers the need. It is externally applied and can be used frequently without upsetting the digestion.

When rubbed on over throat and chest Vicks acts externally like a liniment or plaster. At the same time the ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the affected parts.

Vicks is the ideal treatment for children's cold troubles.
